

Razer Prepares for Mass Effect 3

Written by Marco Attard
22 February 2012

As the much anticipated 3rd chapter in Mass Effect saga nears launch, your customers will want Razer's Mass Effect 3-branded peripherals and accessories-- all coming with a code unlocking downloadable content for the game.

The peripheral series mostly consists of re-skinned Razer products, including the Emperor mouse, Vespula mouse mat, BlackWidow Ultimate keyboard (for the PC gamers), Onza controller and Chimaera headset (for the 360 owners). All come dressed up in red, black and the vital "N7" logo from the series.

Razer also offers a couple of branded accessories (a messenger bag and iPhone case) for customers wanting to show their love for the sci-fi game series.

All the above mentioned Razer offerings should be available from March 16th-- which happens to be 10 days after the game launches...

Go Razer Mass Effect 3 Accessories