Cooler Master promises the CM310 is a "gaming mouse for everyone," one with a design both ergonomic and ambidextrous as well as "versatile, reliable, dependable" performance.

The CM310 offers rubberised side grips, a total of 8 buttons and multi-zone RGB illumination, together with a Pixart A3328 optical sensor with seven performance levels ranging from 500 - 10000 DPI. Adjustment comes through two easy access DPI control buttons above the textured RGB scroll wheels. In addition to the clickable wheel, the mouse has x2 main buttons, x2 side buttons and RGB mode toggle.

Weight clocks at around 100g, as calibrated to hit an ideal spot for feel and balance. The mouse measures 1270 x 71.5 x 39.5mm, and features 3mm lift off distance and 1000Hz polling rate. Lighting comes in 5 preset modes, while connectivity comes through a 1.8m flexible rubber cable.

The CM310 is available now.
