

HP Refreshes Desktops with Ivy Bridge

Written by Marco Attard
25 April 2012

HP announces additions to its consumer desktop PC families, with x5 models carrying Ivy Bridge, the 3rd generation of Intel quad-core processors.

Three of the new Ivy Bridge-powered models come in the all-in-one format-- the Omni 220qd (with a 21.5" display and optional Beats audio), the Omni 27qd (the first HP all-in-one with a 27" display) and the touch-enabled TouchSmart 520xt.

Moving to towers, HP offers the Pavilion HPE h8t and more-powerful HPE h8xt, as well as what the company calls "most powerful Pavilion platform to date," the HPE Phoenix H9t.

Go HP